

WorldLight Releases the ExpiCore Search Platform

Halmstad, Sweden – May 1, 2008 – WorldLight (www.worldlight.com), has of today released its search platform ExpiCore.

ExpiCore is a complete solution for information discovery and retrieval, and has its foundation in the experience gained from developing and operating the international Web search engine Entireweb.com for nine years.

ExpiCore is designed to be unrivaled in flexibility and feature-richness, and enables you to make searchable precisely the information you're interested in – be it your website, intranet, product database or even substantial portions of the entire Web.

ExpiCore features a unique topic-recognition module, enabling the search engine to automatically determine the theme and subject of every document it searches. This makes it easy to find and make searchable every document on the Web relating to a particular subject.
